

October 3, 2005

Contact: Lara Covera,
Pattonville High School
(314) 213-8051, or
Miriam Kerns,
community relations.
(314) 213-8025

Pattonville High presents unique theatre experience Oct. 13-15

Pattonville High School will provide a unique theatre experience when the students present “The Jellybean Conspiracy” on Oct. 13-15. Performances will begin at 7 p.m. each evening in the Pattonville Community Auditorium, 2097 Creve Coeur Mill Road, Maryland Heights. Admission is $3 for students and $5 for adults.

“The Jellybean Conspiracy” is a project in which people of different gifts come together as one to tell the Jellybean secret. The secret is that each person has a unique and irreplaceable contribution to make in this world.

The evening will begin with a series of performances from individual students and small groups showcasing a variety of talents. This will be followed by a one-act play that tells the story of a teenage girl’s awakening as she come to terms with the reality of her brother’s limitations and gifts.

“The Jellybean Conspiracy” project has a corresponding foundation formed in 2001 to bring the show to more schools in the United States. On Thursday, Oct. 13, Howard Martin, PhD, director of the foundation, will be Pattonville’s special guest. For more information, check the group’s Web site: <http://jellybeanconspiracy.org>.

###