Burd named assistant principal at Positive School

The Pattonville Board of Education on Feb. 27 named Donna Burd as an assistant principal at Pattonville High School. Her primary responsibility will be overseeing the Positive School alternative program for at-risk students at the high school. She will be replacing Marc Montgomery, who will retire June 30, 2007 after 10 years with Pattonville.

“Ms. Burd has a true passion for helping children succeed and doing what’s best for students,” said Interim Superintendent Donette Green. “I am confident she will provide excellent service and leadership to our Positive School students, staff and families.”

Burd joined Pattonville in July 2001 when she was selected to serve as assistant principal at Pattonville Heights Middle School. She previously served as administrative intern at Selvidge Middle School in the Rockwood School District, as a teacher and administrative intern in the Francis Howell School District, and as a middle school teacher in the Rockwood School District.

A Pattonville High School graduate, Burd holds a bachelor’s degree in elementary education from the University of Missouri-St. Louis, a master’s degree in education and a master’s in education administration from Southwest Baptist University. She is working toward her doctorate in educational administration from Saint Louis University.
